

Authorization to Pay Overdrafts on Everyday Debit Card Transactions Disclosure

What You Need to Know About Overdrafts and Overdraft Fees

An overdraft occurs when you do not have available funds in your account to cover a transaction, but we pay it anyway. We can cover your overdrafts in two different ways:

1. We have standard overdraft practices (Discretionary Courtesy Pay) that come with your account.
2. We also offer overdraft protection plans, such as a link to a savings account or line of credit, which may be less expensive than our standard overdraft practices. To learn more, ask us about these plans.

This notice explains our standard overdraft practices.

What are the standard overdraft practices that come with my account?

We do authorize and pay overdrafts for the following types of transactions:

- Checks and other transactions (excluding ATM withdrawals) made using your checking account number.
- Recurring payments (when identified as such by the merchant) made using your debit card.

We do not authorize and pay overdrafts for the following transactions unless you ask us to (see below).

- One-time, everyday debit card transactions from your checking account.

We pay overdrafts at our discretion, which means we do not guarantee that we will always authorize and pay any type of transaction. If we do not authorize and pay an overdraft, your transaction will be rejected.

What fees will I be charged if Columbia Credit Union pays my overdraft?

Under our standard overdraft practices:

- The Overdraft Fee is a one-time $20 flat fee charged during day-end processing when at least one member transaction takes the account balance negative during the day and the Current Balance is negative by more than $20 as of our day-end processing.

What if I want Columbia Credit Union to authorize and pay overdrafts on my everyday debit card transactions?
